BRADFORD MARINE TO PROVIDE NAVAL ARCHITECTURE SERVICES

Fort Lauderdale, Florida – Bradford Marine is pleased to announce that Bill Schumacher, a Naval Architect with 20 years of yacht design experience, has joined the Bradford Marine Team to lead in the design of refits, repairs, and new construction projects.

Bill has substantial experience in new construction and repair projects for yachts and other types of vessels, including numerous hull extensions, re-powering projects, and major and individual systems refits. Among his notable past projects are contributing to the design of the 185’ Hargrave/Amel motor yacht Katamarino and the system design and development of a 222’ private motor yacht.

Paul Engle, Bradford’s President, said “We are very pleased that Bill has joined the Bradford Marine Team. Bill will be working with many local and international naval architects and for increased efficiency and in the interest of our customers, Bradford Marine’s facilities and software will also be available to visiting professionals.”

Mr. Engle added “Bradford Marine’s combined knowledge, using the latest computer technology, will make new ideas come to life. Our many years of refit, repair, and management experience allow us to not only anticipate problems before they occur, but to also formulate the correct work sequencing for any yacht construction or repair project.

Bradford Marine's attention to details will result in designs that can be built and will work."

Available services include: Repair; refit; hull and superstructure extensions; machinery and ship system revisions; engine exhaust systems; deck equipment modifications including anchor system redesign; and preparation or review of construction specifications for Classification Society and USCG surveys.

Bradford Marine is the world's largest undercover yacht repair facility, offering a full line of highly-regarded, quality yacht-related services. Quality, customer satisfaction, responsiveness, and top-of-the-line service are watchwords at Bradford Marine.
